EURO-STATE? NO THANKS!

THEY ARE ALL AGREED - Major, Kinnock, Ashdown - they all want a single European state, they only disagree about the speed at which it is to swallow up Britain. So far they have agreed to common weights measures and standards and to work towards a common currency, but what they have really set their sights on is a supreme European Assembly.

They know the British people will not accept such a bitter pill in one bite and so it is going to be imposed one shackle at a time. Douglas Hurd, the old Etonian Foreign Secretary, gave the game away, when, on 26th June, in the House of Commons he said:

"If a move towards monetary union were attempted without substantial progress towards economic convergence the economic costs would be heavy".

So clearly he wants a single currency, but not just yet. He also knows that a single currency would mean that virtually all the important economic decisions would be made by the authority issuing the currency - which would be a central European Bank - controlled by a European Assembly - irrespective of the wishes of the British Parliament and People.

Once such a European Assembly held the economic reins of power it is inevitable that they would control the purse strings of all other areas of administration. The British people will then wake up one day to find that they were being ruled by a distant and out of touch Assembly in Strasbourg, while the British Parliament would be relegated to debating the repair of cracked paving stones.

Already the Westminster politicians are out of tune with the wishes of the people of this country; how much worse it will be when the debates about our future are not even being held in this country.

The real and most important political question facing the people of Britain is whether they want to determine their own future and have a real say in the running of their affairs. If they want to give up all real political power then they should allow the Con-Lab-Lib coalition to give away our birth rights.

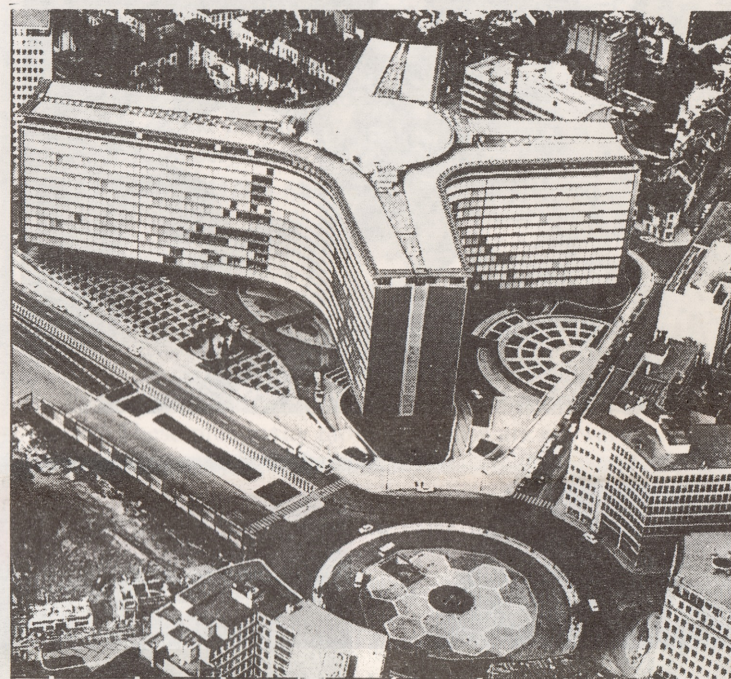

If however we want to retain power over our own destiny and give real power back to the people then there is only one choice and that is to support the National Front.

FREE ENTRY FOR TWO MILLION AFRICANS!

MANY OF our newspapers, particularly the tabloids, have been presenting the changes due to come in during 1992 as if they were a financial bonanza: fewer customs checks, easier travel, you can go and work in any European country you fancy, etc, etc.

But there has hardly been any space devoted to the other side of the coin. The relaxation in border controls will make it far easier for drug smugglers to import their evil substances, especially through the Mediterranean countries - now regarded as the 'soft underbelly' of Europe. It will also be easier for terrorists to travel throughout the European Community area thus making their capture even more difficult. This is especially true when it is remembered that Southern Ireland is a full member of the European Community.

It is true that after 1992 there will be free movement for British people wishing to go to Europe, but there will also be no restrictions on Europeans coming to Britain, including the two million north Africans living in France and the hundreds of thousands of Turks living in Germany. Once in this country all such people will have the same rights as you or I and will be able to decide on future governments. The distinctiveness and cultural identity of Britain will slowly fade away and we will simply end up as a grey and economically depressed offshore island of Europe - is that what our fathers and grandfathers fought for?

• SOVEREIGNTY SACRIFICED: The European Parliament now rules Britain

EUROPE ALREADY BULLYING BRITAIN!

AT THE EUROPEAN Summit the Franco-German alliance of Francois Mitterand and Helmut Kohl both pushed hard for further moves towards a federal Europe. Several other nations go along with this hoping to ingratiate themselves with Europe's "twin big brothers".

However Britain is not alone, both Portugal and Denmark eagerly defended their sovereignty even though Denmark's Paul Schluter makes the right noises so as not to offend Germany on which his country is heavily economically dependent.

Then there are countries like Norway, Sweden and Switzerland who don't even belong to the current European Community but who are being forced into considering membership to avoid being left out of this European club.

Moves towards European union are being heavily promoted by Jacques Delors, President of the European Commission and by the leaders of France and Germany - Francois Mitterand and Helmut Kohl. Could it be coincidence that these three political leaders would be the three most likely to dominate any such super state.

Europe has had peace for 45 years as a group of independent, friendly, sovereign nations; now what is being proposed is the imposition of rule by a European Assembly in Strasbourg which would have greater powers than the Kremlin ever had over the Soviet Empire.

The only person who ever had the ego and self-delusion to attempt to impose such rule in the past was Adolf Hitler who caused the last war. It would now be the supreme irony if just as the constituent nations of the old Soviet Empire are fighting for and winning their independence, that we should be subject to a plan to raise a Western-European Empire to subjugate the wills of sovereign nations.

Should such an attempt succeed then the possibility of friction between individual nations and a central European authority is inevitable and could easily result in widespread bloodshed when a nation finally chooses to free itself of such bureaucratic shackles.

National Front Policy on Europe

THE NATIONAL FRONT seeks greater co-operation and understanding between the nations of Europe by means of mutual respect between sovereign and independent nations. Each nation retaining absolute control over its own affairs and destiny.

We seek extensive cultural links but we do not want Britain to have any control over the affairs of any other nation. We would encourage sporting and other contacts between the nations.

We see "European integration" as a back door method of building up a bureaucratic European assembly able to dictate laws to widely different groups which in the end would be a disaster.

We are against any move towards the formation of a common defence force as this would have prevented our freedom of action during both the Falklands War and the Gulf Crisis.

Whatever the stage in the imposition of foreign control over our affairs when we achieve power, the NF will fully and completely re-assert the British peoples right to self determination in exactly the same way as the newly re-emergent nations of Eastern Europe have done with the Soviet Empire.

HELP FOR OUR VILLAGE HALLS

THE NATIONAL FRONT applauds the project launched by the Carnegie UK Trust to give Britain's village halls grants of £500,000 over the next five years to help them flourish as centres of social activity in rural areas.

The Carnegie UK Trust was set up in 1913 by Andrew Carnegie, a Scottish-born philanthropist who made a fortune in America.

Priority will be given to village halls in centres with populations under 3,000 that have lost local services, with special programmes to help children, young mothers, pensioners and the unemployed.

THE CHANGING FACE OF OUR COUNTRY

BRITAIN'S SECOND Black circuit judge has just been appointed. He is Judge Anura Cooray who was born in Sri Lanka in 1936 and in 1982 became the first Black metropolitan stipendiary magistrate.

A new Labour Peer took his seat in the Lords last month. He is Meghnad Desai, a professor of economics at the London School of Economics and was introduced to the Upper House as Lord Desai.

While his contemporaries at Oxford University are worrying about finding a job after they graduate, Krishnan Guru-Murthy has landed a plum job with the BBC joining the rapidly growing ranks of ethnic minorities in the Corporation. He has been chosen as the new presenter of the children's news programme Newsround.

Did these people gain their positions through merit or because of positive discrimination?

Were there better qualified and more suitable White people available for the positions but who were ignored in the interests of Race Relations?

Who knows? Maybe there is a clue in the fact that Oxford University has agreed to plans put forward by the Race Board that entrance exams are made easier for the ethnic minorities. At least six colleges in the city are to admit Blacks and Asians with lower A-level grades than normal, presumably taking the place of better qualified British applicants.

Wigan Council Squeezes It's Ex-Servicemen

by Stephen Ebbs

LOCAL COUNCILS throughout Britain lean over backwards when it comes to throwing money in the direction of the ethnic minorities; yet when it comes to the needs of Britain's ex-servicemen it seems some councils are prepared to squeeze every penny they can out of those men and women who have served their country over the past fifty years.

One such council is Wigan in Lancashire who have introduced legislation which provoked the town's normally quiet ex-servicemen and women to demonstrate on their Town Hall steps.

Mr John Bolton, of the Ex-Servicemen's Association, recited the Remembrance Day tribute "They shall not grow old..." whilst his members stood smartly to attention and paid tribute to their fallen comrades.

These elderly heroes were protesting because Wigan Council have decided to take 40% of War Pensions and War Widows' Pensions into account when calculating community charge and housing benefits.

"The War Widows' husbands died for this country and the War Pensioners got their wounds and injuries in service of this country" Mr Bolton told reporters on the Town Hall steps. "Surely they should be a special case" he argued.

The National Front backs him 100%. Wigan Council should be ashamed of themselves for passing such disgraceful legislation. It's an insult to our Ex-Servicemen who have given everything and more for their country to be victimised in this way.

Road Lobby Wins Right To Destroy Battlefield!

THE 17-YEAR campaign to prevent the construction of a link road between the A1 and the M1 across the historic battlefield of Naseby, in Northamptonshire, has ended in defeat with victory going to the all-powerful road lobby.

The battlefield today is "a fitting haven of peace" having reverted to nature after the wholesale slaughter that had taken place there in 1645. 5,000 men and women died in the battle the ramifications of which have shaped the society we now live in.

Naseby was the most important of all battles that took place on British soil. It marked the climax of the Civil War when the Royalist forces were put to flight, never again to put up resistance to the Parliamentarians. The outcome was constitutional monarchy, and rule through parliamentary democracy by a body that came to be known as the Mother of Parliaments.

It is a scandal that the site should be desecrated for the sake of yet another road. Will there ever be a corner of England that is free from the ravages of motorway madness?

A RAT INFESTED RUBBISH TIP FOR THEM!

Vietnamese A Priority For Manchester's Labour Council

MANCHESTER'S LABOUR Council is practising double-standards as it tries to administer the city, firmly placing the emphasis on winning votes for the next election rather looking after the interests of its British residents.

Labour leaders have pledged more help and support for immigrants coming to the city and have approved a new organisation to give aid to Vietnamese families living and arriving in the city.

Council leader Graham Stringer and chief executive Gordon Hainsworth are worried about the needs of Vietnamese families arriving, at the rate of five a week, from Hong Kong.

"They arrive knowing no one and have difficulty communicating" said Councillor Stringer, "It is our priority to set up a Vietnamese Community Centre in the city and make money and jobs available to these new arrivals".

While Stringer and his Labour cronies are rolling out the red carpet for Charlie, British families in Collyhurst are living with a smouldering rat-infested mountain of rubbish two-storeys high in their back yard.

Manchester Council have done nothing to remove the mountain of waste on a former mill site in Thornton Street. Children have been falling ill and pensioners say their lives are being made a misery because of the obnoxious smells coming from the dump.

Andy Shannon of the Collyhurst Tenants' Action Group wants action from the council "We have been putting up with this mess for years", he said. But he's not hopeful.

Andy Shannon is right not to be optimistic. The council have got the Vietnamese to make comfortable, a much higher priority than the British families in Thornton Street.

MP'S GET FREE TRAVEL BRIBE

YOU WILL be delighted to hear that your taxes this year will be used to give free travel to British M.P.'s to and from Europe. £500,000 is being set aside by the Treasury to give free flights to M.P.'s to Brussels and Strasbourg.

They are also to be given free telephone and fax services. Sir Teddy Taylor M.P. at least had the guts to denounce the scheme: "If a public company were to do it they would be accused of corruption". He also said that any free tickets that came his way would be passed to pensioners in his constituency as they needed "the holiday far more than we do".

As European authorities gain more power we can expect to see far more of this type of corruption which is regarded as normal in some countries which form part of the so-called "European Community".

BIRMINGHAM NF TO CONTEST YARDLEY

PAULINE READ has been adopted by the Birmingham Branch of the National Front to fight Birmingham Yardley at the General Election.

Her selection means that Birmingham and the West Midlands will provide the heart of the National Front's election campaign with six seats being fought in the area and the possibility of another two or three candidates being adopted before the election is called.

Pauline typifies the new breed of NF candidates that are coming forward. A housewife who felt she must do something as society started to crumble around her, Pauline was recruited during the Birmingham East Euro-Election and has been a committed and

STOP THE ANIMAL ANARCHISTS!

A number of butchers shops in North London have recently been attacked by the Animal Liberation Front. As if there wasn't enough for businessmen to worry about, what with excessive interest rates, business rates, VAT and paperwork! Now they are suffering from the attentions of a bunch of cranks. If the animal liberationists are generally worried about animals there are a lot of peaceful political activities which they can employ in their campaign.

Backing the Butchers of North London!

LONDON NORTH National Front are standing by their local butchers who for the past two months have been under attack from lunatics from the Animal Liberation Front.

Shops have been daubed and windows smashed. Incendiary devices have been put through letterboxes and even a homemade bomb was found in a carrier bag outside one shop in Edmonton.

In a leaflet issue in support of the harassed tradesmen, London North NF acknowledges that the butchers are already facing problems without the antics of these animal crackpots.

"As if there wasn't enough for businessmen to worry about, what with excessive interest rates, business rates, VAT and endless paperwork".

Of course the antics of the Animal Liberation Front are designed just to cause trouble and publicise themselves. They don't give a damn about animal suffering. If they did, they would be campaigning against the sick and sinister Ritual Slaughter that ethnic minorities in Britain demand takes place. It causes animals the most horrendous suffering and is a barbaric method of killing that is like something out of the Dark Ages.

Yet the ALF haven't daubed one Moslem or Jewish slaughterhouse and butchers in Golders Green, Finchley and Hendon have been left untouched.

Dare one ask the question why is it only British butchers that are being attacked?

Successful Ulster Visit

by Mark Cotterill

YET AGAIN a National Front sales team sold hundreds of copies of The FLAG at this year's 12th July Orange Parade in Belfast city centre. Members from Exeter, Torbay, Oxford, Milton Keynes and South London made the trip over to the Province and all of them had a very enjoyable time.

Most of the NF team stayed in East Belfast, where accommodation was provided by local Loyalists. Everywhere we went we were met with friendship, renewing old acquaintances and meeting many new contacts. The 11th night was spent around one of the large traditional street bonfires, just off the Newtownards Road, where Loyalist songs rang out until the early hours of the 12th.

On the morning of the 12th, NF members walked alongside the local bands and lodges from East Belfast to the city centre, where they joined the main parade to Finaghy Field. Most of the copies of The FLAG were sold in the centre of the City without any problems. However a couple of the sales team sold another 100 back in East Belfast to locals waiting for the return of their bands to the Newtownards area.

On the evening of the 12th a very pleasant social was held with Loyalists from the DUP and Official Unionists. All our badges were eagerly snapped up and the remaining papers sold. Yet again we were told, it was "good to see us, and that the NF were the only ones on the mainland who bothered to come over each year to support their fellow-Britons".

Positively Disgraceful

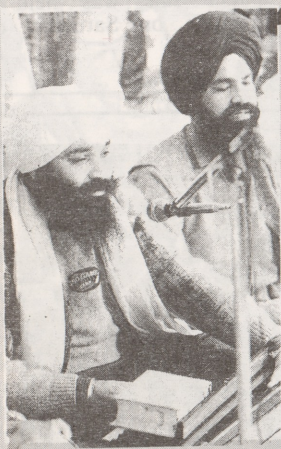

by Stephen Ebbs
TRAFFORD PARK Development Corporation, Manchester and City Action Team and the Training and Enterprise Council are financing a pilot job training project to the tune of £81,000.

On the face of it you could be under the impression that this is a genuine attempt to train people for a better future. However closer investigation reveals that the four 12-week courses are for women from the ethnic minorities only.

Can you imagine the furore if there were a scheme for White Women only!!!

The courses, of course, are not about training people for a better future. They are about 'appealing the minorities' and to hell with anyone else.

Trafford Park is overflowing with unemployed Britons desperate for training so they can have a chance of a better future. A National Front Council would ensure that they were given that chance.

Take-Away Scandal

by Stuart Lake
A LOCAL Government Ombudsman reported "a major lapse in the standards of conduct of public life in Birmingham".

The report out last month tells how a Labour councillor Ghazanfar Khan used his influence to drum up support amongst his unsuspecting council colleagues to approve a planning application allowing him to change a shop he owned in Great Barr from an estate agents to a tandoori take-away.

Despite local opposition concerned about the smell, noise and parking problems the tandoori takeover went ahead.

Khan pocketed the profits from the increased value of his shop leaving duped Council officials stunned, even more so because a blunder by the Criminal Prosecution Service means that Khan's case under planning legislation will not be brought before the courts.

To make matters worse Birmingham City Council have been ordered by the Ombudsman to pay compensation to Khan's two neighbours for the loss in value of their property.

TORIES LEAVE BRITAIN DEFENCELESS

by Martin Wingfield

THE AMALGAMATION OF the Ulster Defence Regiment with the Royal Irish Rangers is an insult to the people of Ulster, to the soldiers of the UDR and to the families of the 2,000 British servicemen murdered by the IRA.

The decision was prompted by treacherous weasel Tom King who was a disgrace when Northern Ireland Secretary and now threatens the very security of our country as he wields the axe cutting Britain's Services to the bone.

It is a classic example of the mentality of Conservative thinking today that a foreign regiment, the Gurkhas, who have done little for Britain in the last 30 years should survive yet the soldiers of the UDR who have given their lives and their blood for our country and people in Northern Ireland should be axed. The Tories under John Major are proving themselves to be as anti-British as the traitors on the Labour and Liberal benches.

Tom King's much heralded defence cuts last month were the public face of the wholesale butchery of Britain's armed services. In fact throughout the last two years our services have been run down to a dangerous level in much less publicised acts of treason with Britain's Navy suffering most.

The Merchant Navy, Britain's fourth arm of defence has been decimated. The Gulf War highlighted the seriousness of the situation when only 8 ships of the 142 chartered by the Ministry of Defence were British.

Since 1975, the Merchant Fleet has dropped from more than 1,600 ships to barely 300, and the number of sailors from 80,000 to 18,300. Of the 53 British merchantmen used in the Falklands, less than a third still sail under the Red Ensign.

The MoD has pushed ahead to halve the Navy's submarine fleet without any consideration of the world's growing instability. Just

NOW BRUSSELS BANS BRITAIN'S OAK TREE

NOTHING is sacred in Britain as far as the European Parliament is concerned and the latest piece of British heritage to come under attack is Britain's famous oak tree which Brussels finds too squat, nobbly and unattractive.

EC Forestry rules require trees to be genetically pure and devoid of bumps; they are promoting a new European super-oak that is straight, smooth and fast growing.

British oak growers face fines if they sell seeds of Quercus Robur the traditional gnarled English oak.

Oliver Rackham, Britain's

• UNDER THREAT: Our Oak

leading authority on woodlands, described the notion of a Euro-oak as madness. "A single species of oak tree would be vulnerable to a single devastating epidemic such as Dutch Elm Disease," he said, "As well as changing the look of the British countryside and reducing the variety of insect and bird life."

Our native oak supports 284 species of insects, more than any other British tree. Features such as rot holes, galls and crookedness add to its attraction for wildlife but under EC directives on forestry any seeds produced by the great British Oak must be gathered up and destroyed.

Have you ever heard such Common Market Madness!

Britain must back Slovenia & Croatia

by Kelvin Sanderson

BRITAIN SHOULD immediately recognise the Slovenian and Croatian Republics that are trying to break away from Yugoslavia.

In the elections in Yugoslavia, Nationalist candidates were returned in multi-party polls in Slovenia and Croatia. In Serbia only Communist approved candidates were allowed to stand reinforcing the belief that the country and, more importantly its Army Generals, are still loyal to Tito's Communist ideals.

Recognition from a world power like Britain would greatly aid Croatia and Slovenia but the British Government instead of taking independent action are dithering around waiting for America and the EC to speak.

HOSTILE

Yugoslavia has been traditionally hostile to Britain despite the fact that Britain was the driving force behind sending military, medical and technical aid to Tito's Communist partisans during the Second World War. When Tito narrowly escaped capture he placed himself under British protection on the island of Vis.

Yet Tito was not in the least grateful. Hardly was the war over when he made the following statement.

"The first target of Communism must be Great Britain. It should not be forgotten that Britain exerts a strong influence on four continents. Once this influence is extinguished we shall have the masses at our disposal and the field of action will be open. Everywhere we shall find allies in our fight against the British octopus and against the head of that octopus, Great Britain".

A Serbian dominated Yugoslavia will continue the Communist line and be no friend of our country. The establishment of an independent Slovenia and Croatia will represent the Nationalist aspirations of the people. It will also give a great boost to the struggle of the Baltic States against the USSR. The Soviets are aware of this and are backing Federal Yugoslavia even though the country has never toed the Moscow line.

• COMMITMENTS: We must defend and preserve British interests abroad

16 submarines are to be retained from the fleet of 27 and of those 16 there are problems with the hunter-killer submarine Churchill and with the Warsprite over their nuclear power plants. Both are laid up waiting repair.

Two of the Navy's four Polaris ballistic missile submarines are so badly damaged that they are unlikely to go on operational patrol again although the MoD insists they will be back in service within four years.

With the Soviet Union still continuing to modernise its submarine fleet at the same rate as before the fall of the Berlin Wall and with the changeable political climate within the Soviet block the Ministry of Defence cuts in our submarine fleet threatens the very security of our country. The decision is tantamount to treason.

The RAF has escaped with the least number of cuts although 14,000 of its personnel will disappear along with seven squadrons.

Britain's Defence Policy should be based on two elements.
■ The defence of these islands and their approaches.
■ The defence and preservation of British interests abroad.

For this we need armed forces that are mobile, well-equipped, highly trained and versatile. In addition we need to retain a nuclear capability to deter any aggressors.

The role of the Ministry of Defence is to ensure that we maintain the Army, Navy and Air Force to carry out these duties.

It is not warmongering to maintain a high level of defence capability - it is common sense. Frederick the Great once said that diplomacy without arms is like music without instruments.

Britain today cannot defend itself without the help of others. It cannot defend itself because our defences have been destroyed by 12 years of Tory Government. The National Front would ensure the security of Britain, its people and interests at all times. The situation in other countries would have no bearing on the state of our defences.

A TOP-GRADE wildlife haven has been ploughed up by developers despite a ruling by the Department of the Environment that the area was a protected zone.

More than 130 species of wild flowers, including the rare marsh orchid thrived on the land at Thorley Lane, Wythenshawe, Manchester, which also attracted butterflies and other insects making it a Grade-A Site of biological importance.

This didn't stop Ringway International Developers buying the field and ploughing it up for an intended car park even though planning permission was refused.

Ian Brown of Manchester Wildlife Trust said the field has now been ruined. "The disturbance will prevent the flowers flourishing and reduce the site's biological standing making it easier for the developers when they make another planning application".

The National Front would jail the developers for destroying the British countryside and ensure they never got the required planning permission.

President Threatens English Common Law!

by Ted Budden

JUDGE ISRAEL Finestein has been elected the new President of the Jewish Board of Deputies and his first act in office was to call for changes in the law - not, as you might expect from such an eminent and impartial judge, to protect the innocent but to abolish the very concept of innocence itself.

The area of law in which, according to Judge Finestein's fine judgement, innocence is a positive hindrance to justice is - surprise, surprise - that of Race Relations. The learned and impartial judge believes that the law should be changed to require "a lesser standard of proof" in order that more Britons may be jailed for "incitement to racial hatred". The law as it stands has, of course, already proved sufficient to terrorise most of the feeble British into silence on matters that vitally concern our nation's survival.

• ISRAEL FINESTEIN: The new President of the Jewish Board of Deputies.

The Jewish Board of Deputies appears hell bent on destroying the traditions and corrupting the institutions of its hapless host nation for what it perceives to be Jewish advantage. Why, so keen is Judge Finestein to pursue this course of that he has even advocated a joint venture with Britain's Muslim community to force through changes in the law. It is difficult to see what these two groups have in common when Israelis are daily murdering Muslims in the occupied territories (the occupied territories in Palestine, not Britain). The only possible mutuality must be the common aim of doing down the British.

And so it goes on.

You may recall that the first Race Relations Act introduced by the Labour Government at the insistence of the Board of Deputies, required proof of "intent to incite racial hatred". This necessity to provide actual evidence of guilt resulted in such a poor haul of Britons jailed under the Act that the Board of Deputies insisted that the Government amend the Act to provide that it was merely necessary for someone to believe that racial hatred was "likely" to be stirred up - in effect, the virtual abolition of English Common Law.

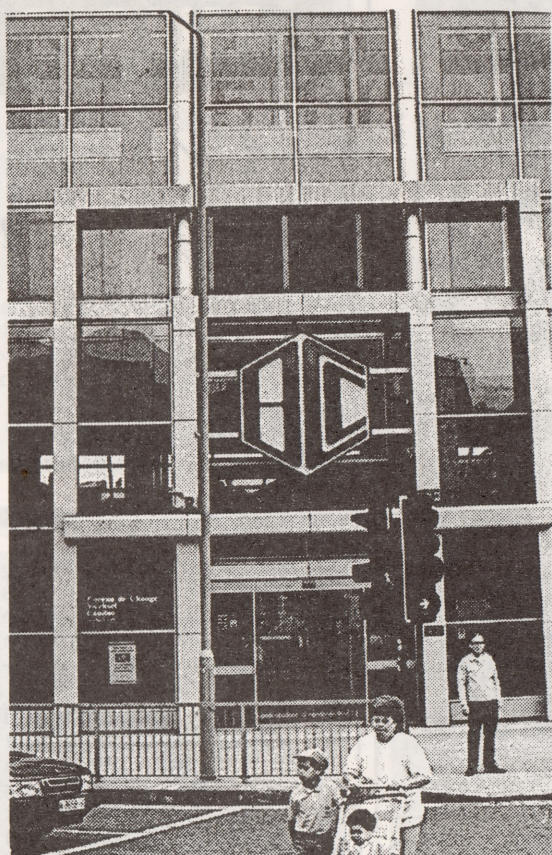

IKEY'S LAW

Still insufficient numbers of Britons were jailed to satisfy the Board of Deputies. Now Judge Finestein demands "a lesser standard of proof" and he will probably get his way, so scared are M.P.'s of the consequences of opposing the Board's wishes.

Hear ye! Hear ye! English Common Law is dead. Ikey's Law reigns and Judge Finestein will administer it!

When it comes to racial hatred, organisations such as the Jewish Board of Deputies are experts. Every time Judge Finestein opens his mouth he will assuredly incite plenty of racial hatred against innocent Jews.

For most British people are not anti-Jewish - they are simply anti-Jewish-arrogance and anti-Jewish-impudence. As is typified by Judge Finestein, there will always be plenty of both to be anti.

• CLOSED DOORS: BCCI's branch in Earls Court (Above). MAN OF MANY HATS: Labour leader Neil Kinnock will work himself up into a lather over anything if he thinks there are votes to be won.

BCCI: Let's Have an Inland Revenue Investigation!

IT'S END OF TERM in the House of Commons kindergarten and all those boring M.P.'s who have been boring us rigid for months with their tiresome party games are hard put to manufacture a really worthwhile "Commons clash" to bore us further still. Usually the best they can manage is of the "Yah boo! My Citizens' Charter is better than yours!" variety.

This time, however, they have managed to dredge up a real live scandal, or so they would have us believe. This is the collapse of the Asian-owned Bank of Credit and Commerce International whose trading operations in this country have been suspended by the Bank of England. It is said that many thousands of "honest and hard-working Asian businessmen" may have lost their cash and may have to be satisfied with a mere £15,000 of compensation.

Neil "Poison Peanut" Kinnock, sometimes described as Leader of the Opposition (and if he's leader what must the rest of them be like) is positively beside himself with grief at the plight of those "honest, hard-working Asian businessmen" as, no doubt, is his back-seat driver; his old red tomato Glenys, Brent schoolmarm and manic ethnophile who is widely rumoured to have suffered a near terminal attack of the vapours when the news broke.

Normally the "Commons clashes" between the Peanut and the Prime Minister are about as stimulating as the mock jousting of fieldmice during the rutting season or one of those ludicrous "grudge matches" between tenth-rate boxers.

However, so desperate is little Neil for the large Asian vote, without which he cannot effectively disenfranchise the British, that he has worked himself into a positive lather of fury over the wrongs committed by the Government against all those honest, hard-working, Asian businessmen. He is demanding increased compensation for them, presumably at the expense of the British taxpayer.

He alleges a Government cover-up. His faltering, fumbling, simulated anger is countered by Major's quavering simulated indignation. My word, isn't it exciting? Well, now you mention it, no.

In fact all the Government need do to spike Kinnock's little pop-gun is to tell the truth, however wary it may be of this unaccustomed exercise.

BCCI is a crooked bank - even more crooked than other banks which is very crooked indeed. It is known to have laundered money for drugs barons and gangsters and to be a specialist in abetting tax evasion by siphoning money overseas.

This, of course, is why all those dodgy Asian businessmen deposited their money with a dodgy foreign bank - because they dislike paying British taxes - indeed it is doubtful if all those honest, hard-working Asian businessmen pay enough in taxes to keep the Commission for Racial Equality working at full blast.

They needed a bank that would be willing and able to assist them in the criminal act of tax evasion and to filter that cash into overseas bank accounts. BCCI was it!

• PEMBERTON: Investigation into BCCI must include Inland Revenue checks.

All the Government need do is to employ their ultimate deterrent and announce that the Bank of England investigation into the affairs of BCCI will be in tandem with an Inland Revenue investigation into the affairs of BCCI's Asian clients.

The queue of claimants will then melt away like snow in Springtime. There may even be large-scale emigration to Uganda.

Kinnock will be labelled St. Neil, patron saint of Asian tax-dodgers. This will guarantee him the Asian vote 100% but will lose him the votes of the British nerks; most of whom are on PAYE and haven't a hope in hell of dodging tax however much they'd like to.

There is, after all, nought so socialist as envy.

AT A STROKE: Prime Minister John Major could silence the demands for compensation, at a stroke, by calling in Inland Revenue investigators!

Mid-Summer Madness? It's a tongue-in-cheek editorial from Ted Budden

This England

I SEE THAT Robert Relf, who some years ago was Britain's most famous political prisoner (there have, of course, been many since), has recently been fined £75 for making 'racist comments' in a letter to Mrs Monica Drinkwater, Chairman of the Conservative Party in Cheltenham, the town where the local Tories have had a West Indian candidate foisted on them by Conservative Central Office.

I suppose that one might properly be prosecuted for making threats in a private letter unless of course one is a Moslem leader in Britain and therefore licensed to utter threats in all circumstances. But to be prosecuted for making 'racist comments' in a private letter? Surely that could only happen in this wonderful free country of ours. In any case, I suspect that the Drinkwater felt contaminated by the criticisms of a mere plebe rather than by any 'racist' comments. Cheltenham Tories are like that.

I see also that Mr Bill Galbraith is to be prosecuted under the Race Relations Act for "inciting racial hatred" despite retracting his famous offensive remark, making a grovelling apology and offering his loyal support to the West Indian candidate. It is entirely wrong that he should be prosecuted. He should be court-martialled for cowardice in the face of the enemy.

Also in the dock under The Suppression of the British Act is The Dowager Lady Jane Birdwood, accused of making 'anti-Semitic' comments. I have no idea what these alleged comments were but I do know that Jane Birdwood is a valiant opponent of the multi-racial society and is the staunchest of true patriots. As we all know it is really for this that she is being persecuted.

This is a telling comment on the state of the nation, for in a truly free and vigorous country the people just would not put up with such persecution of one of their own and would swarm to their defence.

In Britain, on the other hand, such persecution goes on unchecked while the great British couch potato averts his eyes to the television and deplores the lack of freedom in other countries far away.

That, my friend, is the true measure of decadence.

How The Tories Fool The Public

by Ted Budden

I SEE that Ernest Saunders, one of the prime movers in the multi-million pound Guinness swindle, has been released from his comfy open prison after serving less than half of his sentence - minus, of course, the time he spent on leave in London. God, it must have been hell.

It's good to know that the Government is really getting tough with crooks who fleece the public; especially when some coarse-grained and distrustful people are actually harbouring doubts as to whether a Government that is fanatically determined to set up private monopolies by the score was actually seriously committed to financial probity.

• BORRIE: Director of the Office of Fair Trading, a toothless, bogus institution.

It certainly is though. Why only the other day Sir Gordon Borrie, Director General of the Office of Fair Trading, issued a warning to local authorities that certain private companies were operating price rings when tendering for council contracts, thereby ripping off the public in a big way.

Heavens, fancy that! I feel that Sir Gordon must have led a very sheltered life if he believes that councillors need to be warned about price rings when, as the rest of us know, many councillors are not merely aware of such price rings but are eager participants therein.

Sir Gordon, however, has sternly admonished those who engage in such practices and has warned that they might be fined or even sent to prison. Ah yes, there is no doubting Sir Gordon's steely determination to bring the miscreants to book.

Why, only a month or two ago, he uncovered a price ring being operated by three manufacturers of steel roofing materials who dominated the market after an honest trader who was being squeezed out complained. Sir Gordon didn't hesitate. He bore down on the villains like an avenging angel and asked the so-called Restrictive Practices Court to issue an order banning them from repeating the offence. Gosh! I bet that made them shake in their shoes. I suppose burglars would too if they were issued with an order banning them from repeating their thieving activities.

Alas, just lately, Sir Gordon has discovered that most of the major pre-mixed concrete suppliers are operating a price ring despite the fact that many of them have previously been issued with orders from the Restrictive Practices Court ordering them not to. Sir Gordon says that they have brought shame on the industry and that he is so angry that he might actually prosecute

"The Office of Fair Trading is to fool the public that something is actually being done about business malpractice".

• FULL WEIGHT OF THE LAW: Proper action must be taken against business malpractice.

I should hope that we all now realise that grand sounding institutions such as the Restrictive Practices Court and the Office of Fair Trading and the Monopolies Commission are toothless, bogus institutions designed not so much to tackle business malpractice as to act as a camouflage to fool the public who are its victims that something is actually being done about business malpractice. In fact Britain is as corrupt in every facet of public life as the banana republics it is rapidly coming to resemble.

But have no doubt that the Government is determined to crack down on thieving in business. The next milkman who runs off with the week's takings will really get it in the neck.

MUSIC REVIEW

A World Away from the Trash of the Pop Scene

by Stuart Lake

IF YOU haven't heard of Runrig or any of their eight albums produced over the past thirteen years then you are missing out on one of the best of our home-grown bands.

A folk-rock band who started out playing the Scottish student unions with a collection of songs in their native Gaelic these boys from Skye now play to sellout crowds in Belfast, London and overseas and the 40,000 youngsters who packed into the open air gig at Loch Lomond in June demonstrate their popularity.

Their work is a world away from the trash of the modern "pop" scene where perversion, drugs, and multi-racialism abound. Runrig sing about the stark beauty of their Highland home, the sense of sadness at the loss of whole communities as the people drift to the cities and about the sense of being at one with the soul.

"The Big Wheel" is their latest album (out this month) and the third to appear on the Chrysalis label. It is a bit slicker, a bit softer and the lyrics a bit more abstract than previous productions but the music remains as powerful as ever with keyboards and electronic percussion being more in evidence than the traditional pipes and accordions that launched their careers.

If you hear the album and like it look out for their earlier masterpieces "Heartland" and "Once In A Lifetime". In a music world where Caribbean vulgarity and trans-Atlantic drivel predominate Runrig are a breath of fresh air.

Another Word for John

AS YOU will no doubt have read, we have just had the famous G7 Conference in London. G7 is the group of the world's seven wealthiest developed countries, though just how poor, broken-down, technologically backward Britain managed to qualify for this elite group is something of a mystery. If the best that one of the world's wealthiest countries can offer its old-age pensioners is £52 per week, the rest of the world must be in a truly terrible state.

As the representative of one of those countries in a truly terrible state, Mikhail Gorbachev attended in his new role of international panhandler and dutifully signified his willingness to join all the others working for the Yankee dollar. Like some nervous teenage miscreant, he also agreed to be bound over to be of good behaviour and to place himself under the supervision of a probation officer. How art the mighty fallen and how they grovel when they do.

DELEGATED

John Major, as this year's leader of the enormously wealthy, was delegated the task of monitoring the USSR's progress along the path of virtue which involves "privatising" everything in sight, instituting what is laughingly called "A Free Market Economy", and subscribing wholeheartedly to that fundamental tenet of the Tory faith, "Rip off thy neighbour".

The Russians will also have the benefit of John Major's experience of the Tory economic miracle that we've all had the benefit of and which has made us all frightfully rich.

Taking into account the relative populations of the USSR and Britain, the Soviets can look forward to the following goodies that will raise them up to the standards that we've come to expect in free and wealthy Britain: 15 million unemployed; a trade deficit of £60 billion; 25 million coloured immigrants; a million abortions each year and, if the robust Russian mode of expression I've heard is typical, half the population in jail under the Race Relations Act.

The Russian version of John is Ivan. They have already had an Ivan the Terrible. After they've had a basinal of John Major, how will they dub him?

Ivan the Awful?

The Quota Factor

ONE OF the things that have been most influential in making America the cesspit of the world is the racial quota system whereby Blacks and Hispanics and Orientals and, I dare say, Eskimos are given jobs because of their racial origins rather than their abilities. Since the authorities in Britain feel compelled to import everything that is rotten about America, including the racial quota system, I suppose that makes Britain a sort of cesspit overflow tank.

In America, however, there is a reaction against this quota system, unlike Britain where the British are too feeble and timid to defend their rights while clinging to the cosy delusion that they actually have some.

In acknowledgement of this groundswell of American public opinion, President George Bush just the other day announced his nomination of Judge Clarence Thomas for the vacant post on the U.S. Supreme Court, whereupon Judge Thomas burst into a flood of tears - public blubbery by men being another of America's great gifts to the world.

Judge Thomas is said to be "conservative" and opposed to "liberal" policies including the racial quota system.

Judge Thomas is also as black as soot and the judge he is replacing is Thurgood Marshall, another Black.

I wonder which quota Judge Thomas thinks he is representing?

Citations of Glory

AM I alone, I wonder, in finding the war against Iraq to be a good deal less than glorious? I, for one, find it impossible to justify our participation in an unprecedented mass attack upon a Third World country that had done us no harm whatsoever. Our soldiers, of course, are obliged to carry out the orders of their political masters and carried out a dirty job with great credit and in the highest traditions of their service.

However, I do not consider that raining down bombs on a hapless enemy, with the main risk coming from the misdirected fire of one's allies, constitutes a great military triumph and certainly not one that justifies victory parades or the scattering of medals in great profusion.

AMERICAN LIES

Certainly the most bizarre medals on offer were those awarded to the media men; most of whom spent the war at American headquarters, listening to American "briefings" and faithfully retelling American lies to justify the most murderous onslaught on a small country in history.

Remember the pictures of the captured pilots whose faces had been pitted by the fragments of their aircraft's canopies when they baled out? Remember the headlines: "They're Torturing Our Boys"?

Remember the RAF navigator who was shot down over Iraq and after his release described how he was captured but refused to say how he was treated because it was "classified"? In other words, he was well treated but the public should not be allowed to know.

Remember the American "briefing" on the eve of the attack when those brave war correspondents slavishly reported the American assertion that "The Iraqis are systematically executing all Kuwaiti men"? All crude lies, of course, but then so many lies were reported as news that it would take a veritable army of brave media men to list them all.

Still, I suppose since everyone was getting a medal, the media men also qualified. What sort of medal should they be given. The Order of Ananias, perhaps?

And what sort of citation would be appropriate? "For lying above and beyond the call of duty".

Citizens' Codswallop

IT IS common practice when election time looms for political admen to cast around desperately for some gimmick that will galvanise the electorate and so entice them that they will rush to vote for the inventor. It must not, however, be so specific that it cannot be conveniently forgotten when the election is over.

Even in those terms, John Major's very own Citizens' Charter must be just about the limpest election gimmick of all time.

The Citizens' Charter is not, it should be emphasised, a Bill of Rights. That sort of nonsense is what foreigners have and it is entirely out of keeping with our ancient traditions and our unwritten constitution. It would, moreover, encourage the Citizen to get above himself.

No indeed; our Citizens' Charter is sufficiently vague and non-specific to conceal the fact that it really is a load of old codswallop.

Indeed one of the few examples touted of how the Citizens' Charter might operate has thrown up the quite ludicrous suggestion that Britain Rail could be forced to pay compensation for poor service. At the same time the Government has announced its determination to "privatise" B.R..

FAMILY SILVER?

This could scarcely be described as "selling off the family silver" and it is difficult to imagine anyone wanting to buy B.R. except, possibly, a wealthy junk dealer. Thus, in the future, anyone contemplating suing B.R. would probably discover that it had already been sold to Japan as scrap metal.

Even if it were not, the mind positively boggles at the suggestion that passengers might have their fares refunded if their trains were late. British Rail would have virtually no income at all and would have to take on extra staff to deal with the enormous queues of refund seekers.

Still, I suppose in the end British Rail would simply have to adopt the same policies as that other happy band of looters - the privatised monopolies like Gas, Electricity, Water, Telecom and co. When income falls below expectations, charge the Citizen more.

Reality is Just One Colour for Benetton

ANYONE WATCHING the recent British Grand Prix could be forgiven, in all the excitement of Nigel Mansell's great victory, for failing to spot a very revealing sight.

As Nelson Piquet drove into the pits for a quick tyre change, out came 15 ultra-efficient Benetton mechanics, clad of course in their "United Colors (Sic) of Benetton" overalls. But, lo and behold there was not a united colour in sight. No blacks, no browns, no yellows. . . just 15 white men.

Clearly Benetton think it's OK to bombard the public with their sick multi-racial propaganda but realise if they practised what they preached, their cars would be unlikely to compete in the motor racing industry!

A Sound Housing Policy is Vital

1991 HAS seen a record number of homes re-possessed by banks and building societies and a record number of families falling more than six months behind with their mortgage repayments.

The majority have managed to pay the extortionate 14% interest rates at the beginning of the year and just managed to keep their heads above water. But confidence is gone and now with rates down to 11% very few want to risk moving which has resulted in plummeting house values and which has even more cemented in this 'fort mentality'.

Many people ruined by the scandal of soaring interest rates pledge never to buy a house again - but they are wrong. The idea of buying your own piece of our country is right, it is just that the way people were allowed to do it was wrong.

In the past, in reality, the banks have owned the property and 'rented it' out, changing the rent month by month as interest rates rose or fell. The National Front must make it clear that that way is not our way. A National Front government would see the national bank lending funds for house purchase. The bank will have a fixed interest rate of just 5% so that from the purchase of its land the country benefits but in return gives a fair deal to the purchaser.

It is such a simple system and would appeal to those many thousands of former home-owners who lost their property because of the usury swindle.

Spot the White Child!

THIS IS a photograph that appeared in the Ealing Gazette on Friday 5th July 1991. It shows the Stanhope Middle School swimming team. Stanhope school is one of the larger ones in Greenford, West London.

After spending some considerable time studying this picture I am unable to find a White Child. However the accompanying caption clearly tells us that there is most definitely a Lisa Willison in the team. A quick bit of detective work reveals that Lisa is most definitely White.

It appears that the Ealing Gazette has developed a new game along the lines of 'Spot the Ball' to humour our rapidly expanding Asian population. It is, quite simply, to be a 'Find the invisible

White kid' slot that appears on the competition page.

Seriously though it is a most disturbing situation for those of us who live in the area and have children of school age. Stanhope School is not a one-off but indicative of all the schools in the borough.

The National Front is the only Party that can return a sense of priority to our beleaguered part of London. Doing right by looking after the needs of British people whose families down the ages have loyally served our country. Doing right by stopping the Asianisation of our lovely island.

Thankfully I can report that the remaining decent British people of this area are at last waking up to that fact.

• JAPAN: Should compensate British POWs they detained.

Compensation from the Japanese

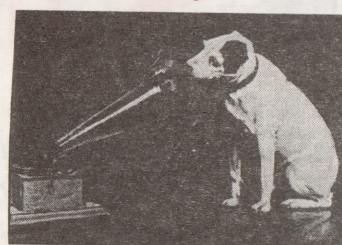

AUGUST WILL see a visit to Britain from Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu and an ideal opportunity for our Government to demand compensation from him for the atrocities carried out by his country's troops on British prisoners during the Second World War.

As one of those prisoners all I have received is a pitiful £76.50 which came apparently from Japanese assets seized at the beginning of the war. It is a paltry amount considering the suffering I and my comrades endured.

Japan is now the second wealthiest country in the world and much of that wealth is generated from its sites and factories here in Britain. I believe that Mr Kaifu should be asked point blank for his Government to compensate those who suffered.

Pensioners in Macclesfield Have to Cut The Grass With Scissors

I write to inform your readers about pensioners in Macclesfield who are keeping their lawns and hedges trimmed by using scissors.

A Hymn That is Relevant Today!

I am writing to say how much I enjoy the few lines of scripture that appear in The FLAG each month. I also look out for the Words of Wisdom and find them very relevant.

While looking through my hymn book I came across the following which is again very relevant to our struggle today, I hope that you will reprint it.

"Men of England, who inherit Rights that cost your sires their blood!
Men whose undegenerate spirit Has been proved on field and flood.
Yet, remember, England gathers Hence but fruitless wreaths of fame,
If the freedom of your fathers Glow not in your hearts the same.
What are monuments of bravery,
Where no public virtues bloom?
What avail in lands of slavery Trophied temples, arch and tomb?
We're the sons of sires that baffled Crowned and mitred tyranny;
They defied the field and scaffold For their birthrights - so will we!"

The hymn was written by Thomas Campbell around 1824 and the tune was adapted from a traditional English melody.

The FLAG is Spot on!

CONGRATULATIONS to The FLAG. In your May issue you had an article entitled "Skin Colour Qualification" which told of British Rail changing its aptitude tests because Black and Asians kept failing them.

Your report contained a quote from a spokesman for the Commission for Racial Equality "The Commission will be working closely with British Rail to get their selection criteria right and put in train measures to remedy the under representation of ethnic minority staff at driver grades and elsewhere throughout the organisation".

The FLAG commented "And if that means people being put behind the controls of a train because of the colour of their skin rather than their ability to drive it, too bad. Even if that in turn leads to accidents and people dying".

In the light of the findings of the recent inquiry into the Cannon Street cash the authorities should have heeded The FLAG's warning.

YORKSHIRE: The Last Bastion of English Cricket Falls!

YORKSHIRE CRICKET CLUB have ended their 128 year-old tradition of playing Yorkshire-born Englishmen in their county side. The club's president Sir Lawrence Byford admitted that financial and political pressure had been brought to bear to make the White Rose county fall into line with other first class cricket sides.

Yorkshire's greatest fast bowler ever, Freddie Trueman was gutted by the news. He had originally pledged to rip up his honorary life membership card if the club signed an outsider but after the club's general committee's decision he was too upset to discuss his plans.

It's very sad that the finest cricket club in England should be forced into cheating as the other counties do by playing cricketers from other countries in their sides.

Sir Lawrence Byford argues that Yorkshire needs success for their supporters. The FLAG would like to remind Sir Lawrence of the well-known proverb...

Quote of the Month

"We are not in the business of seeing three-quarters of our membership, and their employers, being put under threat for the benefit of less than a quarter of the clubs".

Gordon Taylor, Chairman of the Professional Footballers' Association.

FA in Computer Cock-Up!

THE FOOTBALL Association has been taken to court by the Data Protection Registrar for holding personal data without being registered.

The FA were among 17 organisations prosecuted for a breach of the Data Protection Act and named for the first time in the DPR annual report.

The FA can't get its act together to do a simple thing like registering its computer yet it wants to break up the Football League, who have run their business successfully for over 100 years, by introducing its Super League!

Shame About the Sponsors!

WELL DONE to Nigel Mansell for winning the British Grand Prix. What a pity he didn't do it in a British car. What a pity he wasn't sponsored by British companies that could have advertised British goods on the worldwide coverage the event received.

It's rather pathetic that a Briton winning the British Grand Prix should be covered in the logos of a Canadian lager and an American cigarette!
